ARMY VS. NAVY.

Question Whether England Needs an Army for Defense.

MONKEY AND ORGAN CARTOON.

They have so battled the Italians that they are snubbing Americans in Italy—Proportions of the Mala Vita—Emphasis Frederick.

Special to the Gazette. LONDON, April 11.—A discussion is going on among military and naval men and in the newspapers as to whether England needs an army for home defense. The weight of the opinion is that an army is a perfectly useless incumbrance, that the navy can do all that is required, and that should the navy prove inadequate to protect England's coast, the army would then become a question not of fighting, but of holding out against starvation. To this view the army officers are of course unwilling to assent, they contend that the army is as necessary to the nation as the navy on water. Meantime recruiting languishes in consequence of the better opportunities and the income of civilian employment, and the army is with difficulty maintained at a fair standard of efficiency. England finds most of her best troops today in India, where a soldier's wages are sufficient to tempt him to leave his home and his family, and where the men are more obedient to the drill. In Africa, too, it is said that the Southerners under British commanders make splendid soldiers. Many authorities admit that for the maintenance of her foreign possessions England will have to depend more and more on the people that live in them, reserving the native British troops for home defense and aggressive warfare abroad.

STIRRED UP THE ITALIANS. To-day I received advices from Rome to the effect that the flames of hostilities in Italy towards the United States is fed from America. Matters have been placed in a false light before King Humbert and his advisers and trivial incidents beneath the notice of dignified sovereigns have been exaggerated into a subject of consequence. The monkey and organ cartoons in the American periodicals are treated as of national importance. It must be remembered that in such matters the better class of Italians are very sensitive, and they take very seriously what most people would look upon as a jest. It is even said that two or three days past Queen Margherita has shown decided coolness to the American ladies of the royal circle. The monkey cartoons are believed to have caused it, as before the arrival of a recent batch of American papers everything went on a peaceable basis; affairs were settling down to their normal quiet.

MALA VITA. The trial of the Mala Vita society at Bari excited great interest in Italy. The society has for a long time been the source of that vicinity. Several secret assassinations have been traced to its members, and in particular of a lovely young woman whose murder three years ago in the vineyards near Bari for some time puzzled the authorities. It is now known that she was a member of the society, and that she was accidentally shot while she was carrying out her duties. The trial has been a great success, and the society has been broken up. The trial has been a great success, and the society has been broken up.

City of Dallas vs. Fred Keifer, from Dallas. 1. Where no notice of appeal is given in the court below it cannot be sustained here. Appeal dismissed. Per curiam.

Rich Williams vs. the State, from Camp. Assault to murder. 1. No statement of facts in the record. There is no reversible error apparent. Affirmed. Per curiam.

William Hall vs. the State, from Dallas. Aggravated assault. 1. Facts sustain the conviction. Continuance properly overruled. Bills of exception to the admission of testimony therein set out, does not show any merit and the testimony was properly admitted. It shows intent and was part of the res gestae. Affirmed. Per curiam.

Frank Mitchell vs. the State, from Dallas. Aggravated assault. 1. No reversible error in the charge. The facts are sufficient and there was no reversible error in the charge. Affirmed. Per curiam.

Henry Shelton vs. the State, from Colorado. Theft of property over $20. 1. It is shown that the defendant is a subtenant who has escaped from custody. This appeal is therefore dismissed. Per curiam.

COURT OF APPEALS.

SYNOPSIS OF DECISIONS RENDERED AT AUSTIN SITTING.

The Findings—Hon. John P. White, P. J. J. M. Hurt and W. L. Davidson, Associate Judges—P. Walton, Clerk.

T. A. Hasler & Co. vs. S. C. Smith, from Baiter. 1. The court affirmed the judgment that there was no evidence for plaintiff and therefore they would find for defendant. This was correct under the evidence in the case and it was not error to so charge. The fact that an agent in charge and management of the store to sell goods does not carry with it the power to borrow money for and execute notes in the name of his principal. Affirmed. Per curiam.

George W. Caldwell vs. the State, from Willinger. 1. The evidence is sufficient. S. G. Lewis vs. the State, from Baylor. Settling law on Sunday. 1. Though conflicting the evidence is sufficient. No errors complained of save insufficiency of the evidence. Affirmed. Per curiam.

Wallace Sparks vs. the State, from Freestone. Assault to murder. 1. There is no statement of facts in the record and no bills of exception. The judgment is sustained and in the absence of a statement of facts it cannot be determined whether or not there was error in the refusal of requested charges. Affirmed. Per curiam.

George Tankersly vs. the State, from Fisher. Theft of property over $20. 1. No statement of facts in the record. The judgment is sustained and in the absence of a statement of facts it cannot be determined whether or not there was error in the refusal of requested charges. Affirmed. Per curiam.

Jim Elliston vs. the State, from Greer. Keeping and exhibiting a gaming table. 1. We can see no injury in the ruling of the court as set out in bill of exceptions as to the admitted facts. The judgment is sustained and in the absence of a statement of facts it cannot be determined whether or not there was error in the refusal of requested charges. Affirmed. Per curiam.
